Comments on the News "Savvis' deployment is a terrific example of the speed, cost savings and agility that Workday delivers for our customers," said Dave Duffield (http://www.workday.com/company/leadership_team/dave_duffield.php [4]), Workday co-CEO and chief customer advocate. "The ability to go into production with an HR system in 120 days, while also enabling complex organizational structures and highly-tailored workflow, demonstrates the capability and value of Workday's SaaS system of record. I congratulate the team at Savvis for their success and look forward to working with them in the years ahead."

"Savvis' employees access their work applications via Cloud and utility computing environments, and they expect ease of use that is comparable to that of consumer Web applications like Facebook, Amazon and Google," said Mary Ann Altergott, senior vice president of Corporate Services at Savvis. "Workday's applications work like the consumer Web, with simple, intuitive navigation; the use of search, links, and tags; and a focus on helping the manager or employee complete whatever job or task they need to get done. That approach, delivered in a flexible SaaS business model, provides significant, measurable value to Savvis on a daily basis."
