

General Motors Augmented Reality Windshield

General Motors has developed a working next-generation heads-up display that turns an ordinary windshield into an augmented reality information dashboard. Such a system can improve safety and advance knowledge behind the wheel, visually identifying important objects in physical space like road signs, the edges of the road you're on in conditions of poor visibility like fog, and even bring GPS functions right into the dashboard by outlining the exact building you're going to.

Source URL (retrieved on 01/27/2015 - 11:29pm):

<http://www.ecnmag.com/videos/2010/03/general-motors-augmented-reality-windshield>